

EXTRACT FROM IPSWICH STAR – 6th JULY 2021

Jodie Osborn said her daughter Freya, who started Henley Primary School last year, has "taken it all in her stride".

Jodie works as a nurse so Freya also attended school throughout the lockdown, and she "didn't seem phased at all" to only have six people in her classroom.

"The school did an amazing job with online learning, offering live lessons all day every day!"

"Only two weeks into school life she came home with the head teacher's star award! I couldn't have been any more proud.

"I think our young children are very resilient and as they have known no different to their school life it is the parents who have felt the sadness at what they have missed out on.

"Not seeing her first sports day, no assemblies, no face-to-face parents evening so that we can look at their work etc.

"All the children throughout the past year have amazed me with how they have felt with all the changes thrown at them."
